Project abstract:

In this research data management plan, I will be investigating how people perform their own personal digital stewardship. I request that each of the 1024 interviewees uploads a photo or a digital object, such as a medical report, a vacation photo, or a homework assignment. Each digital object should include an attached description noting how the object was found, where it was stored, and more information if it is available.

Personal Digital Stewardship

I will be collecting photos and other digital objects.

The data will be uploaded by interviewees.

Description of how the object was found, where it was stored, etc.

The data being uploaded will originate from the interviewees, so no other permissions are needed.

Interviewees own the data and its copyright.

A copy will be made after the data is uploaded, and the interviewees have the original copies in case anything gets lost or corrupted.

The data will be confidential and can only be accessed by interviewees and stakeholders.

All uploads that contribute to this data management plan will be preserved during and after the project.

The data will be stored in an Archive-It Pro domain.

Data can be accessed and shared among users via Archive-It.

Interviewees and stakeholders must be granted access by the creator of the data management plan.

The creator will be responsible at first, but then the responsibility will fall onto Archive-It's system.

Interviewees' uploads, Archive-It.org, Drexel University

Planned Research Outputs
